People first, every hire.

I've hired across IT and tech, games and creative, healthcare, sales and back-office, from frontline staff to a Medical Director, in agency and in-house. Every hire starts with understanding the person and the team.

Experience

2026 — HR Executive, Hoan My Binh Phuoc Hospital

Jan 2026 – Now · In-house

- Full-cycle recruitment for clinical, IT/HIS, commercial and corporate roles with department heads, using no paid job boards: website, LinkedIn, Facebook, Zalo and networking
- Leadership hires: a Medical Director (through networking and referrals) and 2 department heads (Outpatient, General Internal Medicine)
- Co-built an in-house ATS with the HR Manager and IT team, integrated with the hospital's LMS
- Run onboarding end to end, from offer and salary talks to equipment setup, hospital-wide announcements and buddy introductions; up to 18 new hires in a peak month
- Co-organise Doctors' Day and Nurses' Day; set up a recognition event for a surgical team within 1–2 days

2025 — Recruitment Consultant, DigiSource

Jul 2025 – Jan 2026 · Agency

- Closed Senior Game Designer, Graphic Designer, Content Creator and Warehouse Accountant roles
- Took Data, Flutter and Fullstack (ReactJS/Golang) Engineer candidates to final interview and offer
- Sourced with LinkedIn Recruiter, Boolean and X-Ray search and referrals; supported employer branding and events

2025 — Recruitment Consultant, RRecruiter

Apr 2025 – May 2025 · Agency

- Sourced niche talent with Boolean and Google X-Ray search; shortlisted and coordinated interviews

Why I recruit

I love meeting all kinds of people and learning how each industry works. In-house, that means knowing a team well enough to find the right piece — on skills and budget, and on culture and taste.

What my GM said at my interview

"This girl talks a lot — I don't know yet if she can deliver, but she is seriously persuasive."
I persuaded the GM to hire me. Six months later: 65+ requisitions handled and 42+ positions filled.
